

Important information for our customers and business partners on the current situation in China (corona virus)

In December 2019, the outbreak of a new type of corona virus, which can lead to severe respiratory illness, became apparent in the Chinese city of Wuhan.

Consequently, on the 23rd January 2020, China's State Council has announced the extension of the Lunar New Year holiday to 2 February 2020 (originally 30 January 2020) as a key measure to control the outbreak. As a further containment measure, some city and provincial governments have ordered all companies performing work not relating to life supporting business to suspend operation until February 9, 2020. This also affects the HUBER + SUHNER locations in Shanghai and Changzhou. Other production and supplier companies of the BKtel group could also be affected. More detailed information is currently not available to us.

It goes without saying that we strictly adhere to the official announcements and instructions in support of the government efforts to manage this exceptional situation.

At this stage, we hope that the measures initiated will take effect and regular operations will resume on February 10, 2020.

We assure that we do everything in our power so that resumption of operations is ensured and all capacities can be used again as soon as possible and that promised delivery dates can be met.

In the meantime, our business continuity management team takes all possible measures to ensure the best possible health protection for our employees and business partners.
